Fundamental Rights

Right to Constitutional Remedies

Article 32

(1) The right to move the Supreme Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of the rights conferred by this Part is guaranteed.

(2) The Supreme Court shall have power to issue directions or orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari, whichever may be appropriate, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by this Part.

Habeas corpus: It means “to have the body”. This writ protects the right to life and personal liberty (Article 21). It can be issued by the courts to any authority which has detained a person without trial to produce him to the court for trial. It challenges the executive if it has detained anyone against the authority of law. It can also challenge a law under which the detention has been made if that law is unconstitutional. The court can free a persons if she/he is detained illegally. Disobedience to this writ is met with punishment for contempt of court.

Fundamental Rights

Right to Constitutional Remedies

Mandamus: Mandamus means a command. It is an order issued to an authority or a person to do the duty mandated to it by law which it has refused to perform. Mandamus is not granted against the President, Governor of the state, the high court or supreme court judges. It is not issued against a private individual or body.

Prohibition: It is a writ issued by a higher court – the Supreme Court or a high court to an inferior court. It prohibits the latter from continuing proceedings to hear a case which is beyond the jurisdiction.

Certiorari: By this writ the Supreme Court, and the High Courts may call for the record of a case from a lower court or semi-judicial body on an allegation of an excess of jurisdiction.

Quo Warranto: By this writ the court asks a person or body of persons under which authority it is in a public office created by the constitution or a statute.

Fundamental Duties

It shall be the duty of every citizen of India—

- (a) to abide by the Constitution and respect its ideals and institutions, the National Flag and the National Anthem;
